Hogue Delivers Culinary Solutions with New Bone Flex Knives

Hogue Hunting is releasing new boning knife models to complement their quiver of game-processing cutlery.

Henderson, NV – Minimizing waste and maximizing efficiency are critical post-hunt objectives that make a significant difference in a hunter's yield. The team at Hogue continues to assimilate professional user feedback to engineer and perfect tools vital to each step of the hunt. The all-new Bone Flex models are a synergistic result of this product development method, bringing American-made precision to the culinary stage.

Designed by Scott Bruhns, these specialized boning knives are geared to overcome detailed butchering tasks with ease. The ultra-thin, curved blade profile allows the knife to glide freely through fat and gristle, and proficiently separate meat from bones and joints. The blade's flexibility permits meticulous cuts along the unique contours of a wide variety of game, ensuring as much protein can be harvested as possible.

The Bone Flex is built from 0.094" thick CPM MagnaCut steel, cryogenically heat treated at 62-64 HRC for maximum edge retention and durability. Ergonomic Black Diamond Richlite scales provide a comfortable and non-slip grip so the user can confidently fulfill the processing tasks at hand. Each boning knife kit also includes a glass fiber reinforced nylon blade guard with integrated belt loops, and a canvas zipper pouch for additional storability.

The two new Bone Flex variations will be fully released on Black Friday, November 28th, 2025 at 7AM PT.

All Hogue Hunting products have been rigorously tested and proven by professional hunters, outfitters, chefs, and taxidermists.

Every Hogue knife is proudly made in the USA and backed by three generations of manufacturing expertise. For more information, please call Hogue directly at 1-800-438-4747
